

Barrett and Greene write frequently about performance audits and the work of auditors both for Governing magazine and for their own website, <https://greenebarrett.com/>, where they have started a regular feature called "Audit Watch".

Here are links to a handful of recent columns:

"Why Government Watchdogs are Worried," Governing, September 2017, <http://www.governing.com/columns/smart-mgmt/gov-watchdogs-performance-audits.html>

"A grim prognosis for the auditor's office in Lawrence, Kansas," B&G Report, August 8, 2017,
<https://greenebarrett.com/2017/08/auditor-office-defunding/>

"States and localities can't get much done without the people to do it," B&G Report, August 1, 2017,
<https://greenebarrett.com/2017/08/auditor-office-defunding/>

"A Q&A on auditor independence," B&G Report, June 22, 017,
<https://greenebarrett.com/2017/06/1390/>

"A victory for auditor independence," B&G Report, June 7, 2017, <https://greenebarrett.com/2017/06/a-victory-for-auditor-independence/>

"Performance audits: Why aren't we telling you the good news," B&G Report, June 29, 2017,
<https://greenebarrett.com/2017/06/audits/>